THE MILK STOOL PHILOSOPHER

He wonders if the action of the ratepayers of Collingwood in advocating an 8 hour day in labor on roads could not also be applied to their farming operations as one of the methods of solving the problem of over production of farm products, especially in regard to wheat. A suggestion is that a good way in using their leisure time would be in attending the different meeting which are held for the betterment of their social, economic and cultural conditions. Lets inaugurate it by attending the next U. F. A. meeting at Clover Leaf School, March 10.

I wonder if we the general public are not a little too free with our criticism of those who are serving us in some of the minor public positions, such as, School Trustees, or Municipal and Village Councils. There remuneration is very small and with School Trustees none. The honors attached very doubtful.

They may not have read these lines written 50 years ago by the poet J. C. Holland, but may have some of his visions.

God gave us men, the time demands

Strong minds, great hearts, true faith and willing hands. Tall men, sun crowned, who live above the fog

In public duty and in private thinking.

I also wonder if a few words of appreciation of the services rendered by some of the public spirited residents of Chinook and district would be in order, in regard to the distribution of relief fodder. They have graciously given of their time to unload the cars and also the services in regard to weighing and distribution. Commendation gentlemen, this is true co operation. Contributor.

W. I. Meeting

The March meeting of Chinook W. I. was held at Mrs. Chapman's home Wed p. m. Twenty members and two visitors were present. At the executive meeting held previously, Mrs. Marcy was elected president to fill vacancy created by Mrs. J. W. Lawrence's resignation as president of W. I. Mrs. Lawrence was untiring and never failing in her efforts for the good of our Institute and its members regret her departure very much. Mrs. Murray is now our first Vice-Pres., and at the meeting, Mrs. E. V. Elfrd was elected second Vice Pres.

Dedications are to be made to the Junior Red Cross (childrens Hospital and Salvation Army). A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Chapman for his assistance in transferring tables to and from the card party.

The program for the afternoon was in charge of Miss Parker chose as her subject, "Canadian writers", and handled it very capably. Mrs. Roberts played two piano solos, and received a hearty hand clap. Miss Parker then demonstrated painting pictures on glass.

The meeting was brought to a close by singing the National Anthem.

Messrs Gus Cook and Dan Bell made a business trip to Hanna and Drumheller last Tuesday.

Mr. C. Hohlen is visiting relatives in the Chinook district.

Mr. John Cooley is visiting in Calgary for a few days.

Miss Mac Petersen returned Monday night after spending a short holiday in Drumheller and Calgary.

S. W. Warren Piloted Collingwood Council for Past 5 Years --- Retires

The electing of a new Reeve for Collingwood caused considerable interest at last Saturday's meeting. Two nominations being received. The result of the first ballot was a tie, S. W. Warren wished to withdraw, but the consent of his nominator being held another vote was taken with the same result, still another ballot was prepared and vote taken with same results. It was suggested that Mr. Warren address the council, he stated his attitude in regard to the relief problem in a very definite manner and after the fourth ballot was taken he was defeated.

After five years in office he passed on the duties of Reeve of Collingwood Municipality to a new and we hope an equally efficient man.

It appeared that the council in passing a motion to take proceedings against an individual for removal of buildings from land under the tax recovery act, have taken a definite stand in regard to municipal property and should deter ratepayers from any future offences.

The council still maintains that the Provincial government should be responsible for the relief of the residents of this district which they have moved to other parts of the province, under free freight regulations. They refused the application of a ratepayer who is moving out of the district to have his relief transferred.

Economy of our rural school districts was very much stressed on by the council when they passed a motion asking that a loan of $1500 be obtained for the financing of schools and that $40 per month be the limit for any school district.

In defeating a motion to enforce a section of the Municipal Act, perhaps the new & inexperienced members of the council failed to realize its importance and if they had given it more consideration they would have voted for rather than against.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the retiring Reeve, who thanked the council and remarked that a new man in the chair would be beneficial to the administration of the municipal district and hoped his presence in the council would add to its efficiency. A motion to adjourn was then in order.

Health For Young Girls Happiness For Tired Women

Thousands of women become tired out and run down, become thin and pale, and profound weakness makes life a burden.

The whole outlook of life is changed when the nervous, sick headaches, the sleeplessness, the dizziness, of weakness and discouragement, and the tired, languid feelings disappear with the use of Milburn's H. & N. Pills. They tone up the nerves, enrich the blood, and bring the health back to normal again.

A Toll Equal To War

Once a year for several years past with the approach of Spring which heralds, among other important happenings, the return of tens of thousands of motor cars and trucks to the highways of the country, attention has been directed in this column to the responsibility which rests upon the drivers of these cars and trucks to exercise due caution in their operation. Once again the attention of all motorists is drawn to this vitally important matter.

With the invention of the motor car, a new machine of great utility, as well as a source of pleasure, was provided. It is a machine of great power, and with the passing of the years the power of the individual car or truck has steadily increased. In so far as the machine itself is concerned, and keeping pace with its increased power and speed, there has been constant improvement in its strength and in the provision of manifold safety devices. The modern car is, therefore, less liable to accident than its predecessor of fifteen, ten, even five years ago.

Further, with the enormous increase in the number of cars and trucks in use, there has been a great improvement in highway construction and maintenance, calculated to decrease accidents. On the other hand, these better highways have made possible driving at greater speeds than were possible upon the old roads of bygone years and have encouraged the purchase of many more cars, both of which factors have resulted in greater density of traffic, and traffic moving much more rapidly.

Thus, to a greater degree than ever before, the human factor—the man or the woman at the wheel—becomes the controller in the matter of accidents. Unfortunately, far too many drivers fail to appreciate the enormous power of the machine they are operating—a power for destruction just as truly as a power for transportation. It is a power within the control of almost countless thousands of individuals which, improperly controlled, may mean death and injury not only to the careless and reckless motorist, but to others who are exercising every possible care and driving with the utmost caution and consideration for others.

"What was that?" was the pointed question asked in the British House of Commons recently, during a debate on a motion dealing with the serious increase in the number of road accidents, when the Home Secretary submitted figures of "killed and injured" in road accidents in Great Britain in the eight years 1926-33. The figures were: Killed, 50,837; injured, 1,421,083. Furthermore, the detailed figures revealed an increase in the toll taken in each succeeding year.

Such was the record in a country noted for its good roads, for the excellence of the workmanship upon its cars, and for general observance of laws and regulations. It is a record which establishes how necessary it is that the motorist should exercise the greatest care at all times and under all circumstances in the operation of his car or her car.

At this time, owing to prevailing economic conditions, many people are operating cars which, under other and better conditions which prevailed a few years ago, they should have replaced with new cars. They are still using well worn tires which in other years they would have replaced with new and stronger tires. Because of the necessity of keeping expenditures for repairs down to a minimum, many cars have not been overhauled as in former years; brakes may not be in full working order; lamps may be defective; springs and bolts and other accessories may be worn thin, right to the breaking point. Such cars, if operated at an undue speed, may easily spell disaster not only for the driver and passengers, but for other motorists or pedestrians. All persons whose cars are not in absolutely first class condition are under the grave responsibility of driving with unusual care and observing every precaution. In fact, they owe a duty to themselves and to all other people not to operate their cars if they are in a condition dangerous to operate.

But whether a car is in first class shape or not, the oft-repeated and emphasized duty which devolves upon all motorists remains. That duty is to know and to observe the accepted regulations governing traffic upon the highways and to obey the laws enacted for the protection of all and in the common interest of all. Even if laws and regulations did not establish a code of conduct for both motorists and pedestrians, there is the courtesy of the road which should be maintained and observed. Men should conduct themselves as gentlemen and women should behave as ladies. Courtesy should prevail over selfishness.

Instead of the present appalling record of accidents; instead of that record mounting higher year after year, a change for the better—a lower record,—can be and ought to be established in 1934. It lies in the power of the individual motorist to bring about such a desirable result, and the motorist, more than any other person, will benefit therefrom.

Nothing Accomplished

Just thirty three years ago Japan declared war on Russia. Now they are knocking the chips off each other's shoulders again, and should they come to blows there will be a like outcome. Yet of what avail will it be if one overcomes the other, except it bring joy and gold to the munition factories of other countries.

A Strict Censorship

No amount of "cutting" will let a film pass a German censor under a new law now in effect—once the film has been placed on the blacklist, the law, which virtually authorized the Propaganda Ministry to veto or censor a film before it is made, provides that foreign films which in their original version seem derogatory to German interests may not be shown in Germany.

China's Unclaimed Dead

A total of 17,538 unclaimed dead were found in the streets, crooks, and on the waterfront of Shanghai during 1933, according to the annual report of the Dong Jen, Pu-An, Tong Benevolent Society. This society, entirely financed by Chinese, dedicates itself to burying the city's unclaimed dead and to provide coffins for poor families as well as giving free medical service to paupers.

Marvels of the Human Eye

By F. M. CROWE, Optometrist-Optician, Calgary

NO. 3—SOME OF THE PARTS AND THEIR USES

The Vitreous Humor is the transparent fluid filling about the four-fifths posterior cavity of the globe which is thus enabled to retain its shape. It resembles the white of an egg and is surrounded by a thin membrane lying close to the Retina. The Lens hangs vertically in a depression its convex form makes for itself in the front part of the Vitreous.

The length of the standard eyeball from front to back is approximately one inch and the side to side dimensions a trifle more. Since there are no converging rays of light in nature how are the rays from any object brought to a focus in the short space of one inch which must be the case if we are to distinguish it? This is accomplished by the two very convex bodies described namely the Cornea and the Lens. But for close work the Lens automatically becomes still more convex or "accommodates" for the distance we desire to see. At the age of twelve the accommodation is so active that a child can read just as easily three inches from the eyes as at arm's length, but with increasing years the accommodation diminishes and in the average person of forty, focusing for the usual reading distance of about fourteen inches has become such an effort and strain that the print blurs or runs together and if continued brings on headaches, nervousness, irritability and other unpleasant symptoms due to using up so much nervous energy for this purpose, hence the only solution for this condition is properly fitted glasses, and as the accommodation continues to decrease till about the age of sixty, so the strength of the reading glasses has to be changed periodically although the vision for distant object may remain as good as it ever was.

Besides the muscles inside the eyeball there are six pairs attached to the outside and various nerves supply power for their functioning. Just how this functioning, whether harmonious or otherwise, takes place will be the subject of another article.

What a marvellous organ is the Eye and what an amount of work it has to perform when normal, but when abnormal, through being too long, too short, imperfectly curved Cornal, unbalanced muscles or from other causes—we must expect poor and uncomfortable vision and very often more serious disturbances affecting our health.

Piles Of Gold Discovered In Burial Grounds In Panama

Gold rivalling that of the Peruvian Incas has been excavated by Peabody Museum archaeologists from the burial grounds of a hitherto unknown Central American people. The gold is in the form of rich, often ponderous ornaments. It was buried by a people new among ancient American cultures. They were distinguished especially by a strong belief in a hereafter.

All the archaeological finds came from a flat, 10-acre field on the banks of the Rio Grande de Cocle, in the province of Cocle, Panama.

An Unusual Pet

Full-Grown Deer Follows Ontario Man's Little Dog

John A. Campbell, of Kincardine, Ontario, boasts a novel pet that tags along behind his car at 30 miles an hour as lightly as its shadow. His pet is a full-grown deer. The history of the deer's attachment to the farmer dates back to blackberry season, 1932. Mr. Campbell found her near his house, apparently abandoned. She willingly went home with him. Now that she is full grown she waits for him outside his door like a sentinel. When he comes out she follows him about. And when he goes for a drive in his car she lope along beside him.

Considered Sign Of Worldliness In Early New England

Paint, now recognized as a protection and a beautifier, was considered a sign of worldliness and vanity in early New England. In 1630, a clergyman of Charlestown, Mass., was hailed before the city council, charged with the serious crime of painting the interior of his house. During the next forty years there was not a painter in all New England.

Women motorists at the flash of a red traffic light, require about 25 per cent. more time than men to jam on the brakes, according to tests conducted here by engineers of Massachusetts Institute of Technology with the "delay timer," a device which have been developed. SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, deciding to live their own lives apart until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young, struggling sculptor trying to win a commission for a scholarship abroad and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is not to inherit money when she comes of age and so is studying commercial art in the hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story are Avis Worth, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter, Sylvia Todd, Peter's model, and Gus Matson, his former roommate with whom he has quarrelled. At a party at an exclusive club Peter entertains Camilla's guests with impersonations. When the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the gaiety, Peter and Camilla are left alone on the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avis and another boy are standing near them. This makes it necessary for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. Avis is astounded and Camilla's mother likewise. Cam and Camilla's mother likewise. Bowman and Weeks, an advertising agency, where Camilla has submitted some of her work, send for her and tell her they have a new account which requires unusual treatment of juvenile art. "But I want you to see it, Rose—It's a duck of a place. And I want to see you, because I have some good news for you. Then I'll drive you home. I would have dinner with you somewhere, but I promised to be home tonight."

"To dine in state one last time? Well, you'd better make the most of just like everything else in life—better to anticipate than to experience."

It will be just as monotonous to pick up your own plate and carry it to the sink to wash it, as it is to watch Bates carry it to the remote regions of the kitchen as if it were a burnt offering for the inner shrine. It, my dear, because housekeeping is

Rose's pleasant philosophy and easy chatter rambled on when she inspected the apartment.

"Hot-cha!" was her surprised comment. "Ain't we grand, though? But can we afford it, that's the important question before the house of representatives. Have you balanced your budget both ways?"

Camilla's revelation that she would be able to contribute definitely to the arrangement, called for another "Hot-cha!" from Rose. "You're a whizz, old girl, and no kiddin'! You sure will get wherever you want to go. I wish I were more like you. But her tone held more of admiration than envy."

"You can do anything I can, honey," the elder sister assured her, "and just as soon as I get that raise, you are going to begin that sacerdotal course."

Rose's dark eyes shone dreamily. "Geel kid, you're a swell sister, all right. You know, I used to hate you. In the almost when you came to see us with your swell clothes and your car and your grand manners, and I knew we looked like beggars to you, even when we thought we had things pretty nice ourselves. But even then, I couldn't hate you very much. I know why, now. It's because you really aren't a bit snooty—it was all my imagination and jealousy. I'm glad you didn't hate me, Rose."

Camilla slipped an arm around Rose's shoulders, hungry for the family life that a strange fate had snatched from her. I've always needed a sister like you, and I want to do something in return for all you are going to teach me."

"About what?"

"Well, you are going to teach me to cook, so I can take care of my Peter some day, for one thing. But more than that, I want to learn your viewpoint about life! You are a year younger than I, Rose, and you think you have missed a lot of things I've had. But somehow, you are the one who has lived and grown wise of all the superficial trifles. I want to learn how to live deeply and wisely. I believe that you can help me."

Rose was silent for a moment. That she had anything to offer this beautiful, talented girl whose fortune had smiled upon her, was a surprise to her, but she said presently, with gay insouciance, "Well, if it's how to make three and three add seven, and how to turn the skirt of last season's dress into a blouse for your new suit, you want to learn, I can do all that. And I've seen Ma change a roast into stew, then hash and then tamales so often that I can do the trick like a magician, myself. Those may sound trivial, my dear, but they are really deep mysteries of my life."

"Any accomplishment that requires thought and skill is a mystery until it is done," Camilla agreed. "And those which seem the least important are the ones that make the world go 'round, I've discovered."

Later, when Camilla took her place at the Hoyt table for her last dinner as a member of the household, Mr. Hoyt looked at her keenly and remarked, "So, you're leaving us tomorrow. We're going to miss you greatly, Camilla."

"I shall miss both of you, too," Camilla replied honestly. "But I'll come back to see you sometimes. I'll be pretty busy, of course, and won't have much time for pleasure and friends."

"You're mighty lucky to be getting any kind of a position in such times as these."

"Oh, I don't know. I've heard so many people told that they are lucky to have work, even if it doesn't pay much. I can't see it. That isn't fair. If one has ambition and ability to work, why hasn't he a right to earn a decent living? It is only the misfits who are lucky to have jobs," her tone was a trifle defiant.

"Not turning socialist, just because you are going to work, are you?" Alexander asked, with a twinkle.

"Nothing like that. I believe in the individual, not the masses. But even distinguished individuals are feeling this upheaval."

"They certainly are," Mr. Hoyt agreed, tiredly. He had given no hint to his wife of the condition of his affairs, but it was no betrayal to admit that he was involved in the general oppression. Neither did he know that in Camilla's inexperienced hands lay the fate of his future and his business. Queer, those three whose lives had run in a close parallel for so long, and were so interdependent and so distant; yet not one knew the intimate thoughts and hopes and activities of the others.

NERVOUS, SLEEPLESS

Mr. Wm. Dunning of 5 Hamilton Road, London, Ont., says: "My nerves were all unstrung. I couldn't sleep, my appetite was poor, I became weak and suffered from pains in my back—in fact I was all out of order. But the first bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery produced a wonderful change, so I continued to use it."

No Branch Line

Will Not Proceed With Making Cut-Off At Present Time

The government does not propose to proceed with the Making cut-off on the Hudson Bay railway, until there is a much greater traffic activity than foreseen at the present time. This was intimated to the house of commons by Hon. R. J. Manion, minister of railways, in answer to a question asked by A. L. Beaubien (Liberal, Provenceur).

Mr. Beaubien said construction of the Making cut-off as a relief measure had been promised by both Dr. Manion and the present prime minister during the 1920 election campaign. He suggested that, in view of the likelihood of an election within the next year, something should be done about it.

Dr. Manion said he had never made such a promise.

Big Business In China

Factories Turn Discarded Cigarette Ends Into Smokes For Coolies

Cigarette butts are big business in China. According to an estimate of the bureau of social statistics, about 3,000 men, women and children earn their rice each day by gathering discarded cigarette ends from the streets of Shanghai.

One factory alone receives an average of 15 wheelbarrows full of butts a day. It employs 25 persons to turn them into cheap cigarettes and chevrons for sale to poor Chinese coolies. There are a dozen such factories situated in the international settlement and French section of Shanghai.

Little Helps For This Week

"I will bless the Lord who hath given me counsel."—Psalms 16:7.

Not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord.—Romans 12:11.

Mine be the reverent listening

That waits all day on Thee,
With the service of a watchful heart

Which no one else can see.

Nothing is small or great in God's sight; whatever he wills becomes great to us, however seemingly trifling, and if once the voice of conscience tells us that He requires anything of us we have no right to measure its importance. On the other hand, whatever He would have us not do, however important we may think it, is as ought to us. How do you know what you may lose by neglecting this duty which you think is so trifling, or the blessing which its faithful performance may bring? Be sure if you do your very best in that which is laid on you daily, you will not be left without sufficient help when some weightier occasion arises. Give yourself to Him, trust Him, fix your eye upon Him, listen to His voice, and then go on bravely and cheerfully.

Blue Bread

Blue-Dyed Wheat Intended For Hogs Ground Into Flour In France

France's blue-dyed wheat, intended for hogs, has found its way into some of the nation's bread, with the result that anxious consumers are demanding precautions.

Authorities of the government announced 22 tons of flour had been ground from denatured wheat, intended solely for livestock, and sold to bakers of the Tarascon region.

No ill effects from the bread were reported, except to the feelings of the consumers, who concluded that, having paid the standard price for their bread, they had been cheated.

Corn Growing On Prairies

A new argument for corn growing on the prairies is found in the experience of last season that grasshoppers will not readily attack the leaves or stalks. In many cases when wheat, oats and barley were stripped, the corn was untouched and provided feed for live stock.

Highlights of the session Being Held in Edmonton

The high light of the week in the week in legislature has been the two hour address of Premier Brownlee. But at the same time the first division of the house was taken on a matter of procedure which resulted in the administration being sustained by a majority of 10. The vote was 32 for the government and 22 against.

When Mr. Brownlee arose to continue the debate on the address he was greeted by crowded galleries and a full house. The premier began in a jocular manner in which he extended his deepest sympathy to the two members who had crossed the floor. There after he took up the cudgels for his government.

He replied seriatim to the charge made by the leader of the Liberals, W. R. Howson. He denied them in toto. He believed any schoolboy could have made as good a contribution to the delegate as did the Liberal leader. As for the allegation that the government was run by the Imperial Oil Company, he treated it with the scorn that it deserved. It was utterly untrue.

He preserved silence in regard to the allegation that the government had been guilty of extravagance and waste, but he challenged the liberal leader to prove his words.

This government was no traveling government. On the contrary figures would show that previous administrations had spent more for similar purposes.

Mr. Brownlee pointed out that the government had not entered into any business transactions that would cost the people millions of dollars, as Mr. Howson alleged. On the contrary, all the pools to who advances had been made were away ahead in their repayments. The wheat pool had sufficient bonds in hand to pay off installments of principal for two years.

Government guarantees had not only been good business, but had saved the investment of 40,000 farmers. The premier pointed out the improvements that had taken place in various industries and said the country had embarked on a period of reconstruction. The auto industry had experienced a miniature boom.

Mr. Brownlee called attention to the need for a fair and square examination of the financial situation of the province. The capital debt of Alberta was by no means hopeless and was not unduly large.

The premier quoted a mass of figures to show that the public debt of the province compared very favorably with other parts of Canada and the government had nothing to be ashamed of.

It was absurd said Mr. Brownlee to expect bond holders to cut their interest in half just because he made a personal appeal as Mr. Howson suggested. That would merely advertise that Alberta was hard up and end its borrowing powers for 20 years.

The premier said that the federal government might well insist on lower interest rates on deposits and thus force money in the banks into the ranks of industrial enterprise and make the wheels go round.

The federal government should also get together with the provincial governments to refund the unfunded debts of the west and to guarantee the bonds maturing within the next five years. Mr. Brownlee went over in detail what had already been accomplished by the province in regard to unemployment and showed how Alberta had led the way in many ways.

He stressed the need of a wheat board and for the need to control prices of livestock products on world markets. He favored a moderate controlled inflation and hoped the federal government would finance its work program along those lines. He intimated that a moderate form of industrial code legislation would be introduced to protect worker producer and honest merchant.

George Andrews, U. F. A. Secretary, outlined all that the government had accomplished for agriculture. He advocated marketing boards for farm products and showed that pools established overseas were doing well.

He also wanted a reduction of interest on farm mortgages and other debts. He said that farmers insisted that the debt adjustments legislation be kept in force.

Mr. Moyer, Independent of Drumheller, stressed the need for further aid to the unemployed. He declared the time had come when they should be given work at wages that would provide them with something more than the bare necessities. He believed the money could be got from those who possessed it. Men didn't want sham work. They wanted real work at real wages plus their self respect. He blamed the government for not breaking down party lines in Alberta. There was no room in this province for party politics. We should all get together to work for the benefit of the entire province.

J. J. Bowlen, Liberal, Calgary, after painting a gloomy picture of the livestock industry in southern Alberta and touching on the question of doping of race horses suggested that surplus wheat should be fed to cattle and the animals shipped as finished products.

W. C. Smith, Express, U. F. A. dealt with what had been accomplished by the government for the benefit of the agricultural industry and advocated a works program at wages upon which the people could live. He resented the suggestion that the party whip was cracked over U. F. A. shoulders, but he had heard it had been used effectively when the member for Medicine Hat, (Hector Lang) had shown signs of voting according to his conscience.

W. Harry Ross, newly elected Liberal member for Calgary, in his maiden speech stressed the need for a better managed monetary system. While Hector Lang gave a review of conditions in the Medicine Hat constituency showing what could be done by Alberta industries. He also pleaded for a uniform curricula between the schools of the western provinces.

FORSTER URGES PEARCE SCHEME BE UNDERTAKEN

William Pearce Scheme Urged Relief Project

Urging that the William Pearce Stock Watering Scheme be undertaken as part of a relief work programme Gordon A. Forster, M. L. A. for Hand Hills, proposed the following motion in the Assembly on Thursday.

WHEREAS the survey carried out by the Dominion Government in connection with what is known as the William Pearce Stock Watering Scheme, establishes the feasibility of diverting water by a large canal from the Red Deer River to Sullivan Lake, and from there to through smaller canals and creeks to serve a large territory in the eastern part of the province north of the Red Deer River.

"AND WHEREAS the district which would be supplied with water under this scheme, has in the past has been subject to severe drought, to such an extent that creeks and sloughs are now entirely dry;

"AND WHEREAS the Dominion Government was responsible for opening up this territory for settlement;

"AND WHEREAS the construction of such a system would be a considerable factor in relieving unemployment in the province;

"THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that this Legislature recommend to the Dominion Government that they seriously consider undertaking this scheme as a relief measure, so that water may be made available for a stock-watering and small individual irrigation enterprise in the territory mentioned."

NOTICE

Farmers of this district who will require seed oats and rye this spring kindly make arrangements with Mr. Stevens, Gov't Field man in the Coliholme Municipal office at once.
